BEVERLY — Iraq veteran Ryan Doyle, formerly of the U.S. Army, doesn't complain. After serving his country in a bitter war, he and wife, Kelli, found themselves living in a Boston hotel for six months. And despite having training in computers and high-tech communications, he wasn't having much luck finding a job.

"I can fix anything," said the North Andover native, as Kelli Doyle nodded enthusiastically. "I've got a lot of applications out."

But it's been tough even getting online from a hotel. The couple didn't have a real address to put on those applications. "And there was a fear," Ryan admitted, "that we were going to end up in a shelter."

That was yesterday. Today the Doyles' address is 45 Broadway, Beverly, and they are decidedly upbeat, sharing an airy, high-ceilinged room with a private bathroom in a large Victorian home. Down the hall is a common kitchen and a laundry. There's a garden in the backyard.

"I love it," said Kelli Doyle as they enjoyed a quiet meal by three tall windows, the laptop on the table between them. "It's nice to have a place where we can be together."
